EDITOR'S NOTE.

THE present Opera has been delayed in publication partly because it was found necessary to re-arrange nearly the whole of the accompaniment, the existing arrangements being either wholly inadequate to represent the score, or else impracticable for the Pianoforte.

The Dances are now printed for the first time as they appear in the score, without curtailment. The "Coda" of the Tarantella (third Act) has been included in the present edition as being of musical interest: it was, however, an afterthought of the composer, and is not in his original score.

It should be noticed that the appoggiaturas with slurs are to be sung as well as the notes before which they stand; and those without slurs instead of those notes.

The passage for Violins, with which the Overture opens, is thus written in the score:—

but the received alteration being both easier and clearer for the Pianoforte, it has been retained. Some rests and accents in the Dances also have been inserted from the popular editions, where they assist the phrasing; in all other respects the present edition strictly follows the composer's score, from which the action, metronome marks, etc., have been transcribed.

The first Act passes in the gardens of the Viceroy, at Naples ; the second at Portici, on the seashore between Naples and Mount Vesuvius ; the third in a public square in Naples ; the fourth at Portici, in the hut of Masaniello ; and the fifth in the Viceroy's Palace at Naples.

Period—Middle of the Seventeenth century.

THE libretto of Masaniello, by M. Scribe, is founded on historical facts. The Opera opens with preparations for the marriage of Alfonso with Elvira, a Spanish Princess. Alfonso is full of remorse at having gained the love of a beautiful, but poor girl; and confesses to Lorenzo that he has had her placed under restraint, to be out of the way during his marriage. This girl (Fenella, the dumb sister of Masaniello, a fisherman) makes her escape, and encounters Elvira as she is about to enter the chapel. Fenella clings to Elvira for protection, and, in dumb show, relates how she has been deceived. Elvira promises to befriend her, and then proceeds with her bridesmaids to the altar. During the ceremony Fenella discovers in the bridegroom her betrayer; and on their return from the chapel denounces him to his bride. Masaniello, who has long been incensed by the wrongs imposed on the citizens, stirs them up to open revolt when he hears of the cruel treatment his sister has received. A fearful massacre of the Spaniards ensues; and whilst Masaniello is regretting the excesses of the people, Alfonso and Elvira enter his cottage and implore his protection, which he promises. Fenella recognises Alfonso; but Masaniello, faithful to his pledge, contrives, with the aid of a follower, to convey Alfonso and Elvira in safety from the insurgents. Masaniello is proclaimed King, and presented by the magistrates and citizens with the keys of the city; but his head is turned by his position, and eventually the insurgents are overcome. Elvira's life is again saved by Masaniello, who is shot by his companions for his generous deed. An eruption of Mount Vesuvius occurs during the insurrection; and Fenella, broken-hearted at the death of her brother, after forgiving Alfonso, and entreating Elvira to be reconciled to him, throws herself into the burning lava.

This musical score is for a piano accompaniment, likely for the opera 'Masaniello' by Daniel Auber. It consists of eight systems of music, each with a grand staff (treble and bass clef). The key signature is one flat (B-flat major or D minor). The score includes various musical notations such as notes, rests, and dynamic markings. The first system features a woodwind entry for Oboe and Clarinet. The score is marked with dynamics like p (piano), fp (fortissimo piano), cresc. (crescendo), and f (forte). A section marked Tutti. begins in the fifth system. The score concludes with a final chord marked f and a Sva (Sforzando) marking.

ACT I.

No. 1.

INTRODUCTION AND ARIA.—“OH THOU ILL-FATED FLOWER.”

The stage represents the gardens adjoining the palace of the Duke of Arcos. At the back a colonnade; at L. H. the entrance to a chapel; R. H. a throne. As the curtain rises a troop of Spanish soldiers, led by Selva, are seen to march through the colonnade.

Musical score for "Masaniello" by Auber, featuring various instruments including Trumpet, Clarinet, Bassoon, Flute, and Oboe. The score is written in staff notation with dynamic markings such as p (piano), sf (sforzando), and sfz (sforzando). The score is divided into systems, each with a treble and bass staff. The instruments are labeled above their respective staves: Trumpet, Cl. (Clarinet), Cl. & Bassoon, Fl. (Flute), and Ob. (Oboe). The score includes a variety of musical notations, including notes, rests, and accidentals. The key signature is one flat (B-flat), and the time signature is 2/4. The score is marked with p (piano) and sf (sforzando) throughout. The final system is marked Tutti. and sempre forte.

This musical score page, numbered 49, features a piano accompaniment for the character Eva. The score is written in G major and 2/4 time. It consists of seven systems of music, each with a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The piano part is characterized by a steady eighth-note accompaniment in the right hand and a more active bass line in the left hand. The vocal line is marked with various dynamics and articulations. The score includes the following markings and features:

- System 1: Vocal line begins with a dotted line. Piano accompaniment starts with a p (piano) dynamic. The system ends with a staccato. marking.
- System 2: Piano accompaniment continues with a sempre p (piano) marking.
- System 3: Piano accompaniment continues with a f (forte) marking.
- System 4: Vocal line begins with a dotted line. Piano accompaniment continues with a f (forte) marking.
- System 5: Vocal line begins with a dotted line. Piano accompaniment continues with a p (piano) marking.
- System 6: Vocal line begins with a dotted line. Piano accompaniment continues with a p (piano) marking.
- System 7: Vocal line begins with a dotted line. Piano accompaniment continues with a p (piano) marking. The system ends with a Trumpet. marking.

The score is a reproduction of the original manuscript, showing the notation for the piano accompaniment and the vocal line. The piano part is written in a style typical of the 19th century, with a focus on harmonic support and rhythmic accompaniment. The vocal line is written in a style typical of the 19th century, with a focus on melodic development and expressive markings.

Musical score for "Masaniello" by Aubert, page 51. The score is in 3/4 time and features a piano accompaniment with a melody in the right hand and chords in the left hand. The melody includes various ornaments and trills. The piano part has a steady bass line with some triplet figures. The score is divided into systems, with some parts marked "Sra." and "Wind."

The score consists of seven systems of music. The first system shows the beginning of the piece with a melody in the right hand and a bass line in the left hand. The second system continues the melody and bass line. The third system introduces a section marked "Sra." in the right hand. The fourth system introduces a section marked "Wind." in the right hand, with a piano (p) marking and the instruction "Horns & Bassoons sustain." in the left hand. The fifth system continues the "Wind." section. The sixth system continues the "Wind." section. The seventh system continues the "Wind." section, with a crescendo (cresc.) marking in the right hand.

This musical score is for a piano accompaniment, likely for a dance. It consists of seven systems of music, each with a grand staff (treble and bass clefs). The tempo is marked Allegretto at the beginning. The key signature has one sharp (F#). The score features various musical notations including slurs, ties, and dynamic markings. The first system includes a tempo marking Allegretto. The second system has a Sca marking above the treble staff. The third system has a Sca marking above the treble staff. The fourth system has a Sca marking above the treble staff. The fifth system has a Sca marking above the treble staff. The sixth system has a Sca marking above the treble staff. The seventh system has a Sca marking above the treble staff. The final system includes a descriptive note: (At the end of the dance a violent noise is heard.)

SELVA. f

A musical score for a single staff. The key signature has one sharp (F#). The tempo/mood is marked 'SELVA. f'. The notation includes a series of eighth and sixteenth notes, some with beams, and rests. There are also some notes with vertical lines through them, possibly indicating a specific performance technique. The staff ends with a double bar line.

The musical score is arranged in eight systems, each containing a treble and bass staff. The notation includes various rhythmic values such as sixteenth, thirty-second, and sixteenth notes, as well as rests. The key signature starts with one sharp (F#) and changes to two sharps (F# and C#) in the fourth system. The final system concludes with a double bar line and a fermata over the last chord.
